FOUNDER/EXECUTIVE BOARD

EksAyn Anderson is an influence strategist, author, international speaker, podcast host (top 10% globally), and founder of Fathers for Freedom—a new nonprofit movement empowering fathers to lead with purpose, protect their families, and rebuild resilient communities grounded in timeless, faith-based values.

At age eight, EksAyn witnessed the devastating sudden death of his 32-year-old mother from a cerebral hemorrhage. In the years that followed, he slowly discovered a profound truth: the smallest daily acts of love—tender words, steadfast routines, quiet sacrifices—carry extraordinary, enduring power. These "little things" his mother lived out continue to ripple across generations, shaping not only her children but dozens of grandchildren she never met in this life. This formative loss forged his deep conviction that parental influence is one of the most powerful forces for good in society.

EksAyn channels these principles into tangible impact across personal and professional realms. With a background in psychology and decades of high-stakes influence experience, he rose as a top sales leader, closing some of the largest deals in an organization's history—including an all-time record sale more than six times larger than any prior transaction—in just 3½ years at an organization that once employed hundreds of salespeople. Featured in Forbes.com, Speaker Magazine, television, and leading podcasts, EksAyn equips teams to create loyal, high-impact relationships that deliver exceptional results—whether engaging governments, associations, or corporations.

Strong Fathers. Strong Families. Defending Freedom.

Through Fathers for Freedom, his authorship, speaking, and podcasting (The Principle Podcast), EksAyn innovates at the critical intersection of personal legacy and cultural renewal.

He arms fathers with proven influence skills—refined for the home—to exercise loving, protective leadership that strengthens marriages, fortifies families, revives civil society, upholds parental rights, and preserves freedom for future generations.

His work directly advances conservative priorities: placing God first, honoring the fundamental rights and duties of mothers and fathers, and recognizing that strong families and marriages are the foundation of a free society. Without repairing the family unit, all other efforts risk being futile—like straightening deck chairs on the Titanic. EksAyn's vision and proven track record make him uniquely positioned to drive meaningful, conservative renewal through fatherhood empowerment.
